Monastero Santa Rosa

A LABOUR OF LOVE

NEW HEIGHTS

What was once a 17th-century monastery on the Bay of Salerno along Italy's iconic Amalfi Coast has been painstakingly transformed into the 20-room Monastero Santa Rosa Hotel & Spa (monasterosantarosa.com). The brainchild of wealthy South Carolinian Bianca

Sharma, who purchased the property in 1999 and then lavished it with more than a decade of her time and energy, it opens in May with all of the period architectural aesthetics (including vaulted ceilings, a private 12th-century chapel and a labyrinth of monastic spaces and outdoor pavilions) restored and rejuvenated by a local team of architects and engineers. The vertiginously positioned grounds and landscape gardens, spread over five terraced levels above Cape d'Orso, have also benefitted from a nip-and-tuck and now feature a heated infinity pool. Inside, guest rooms, each with sea views and lovingly decorated with local antiques, boast the latest mod cons while the petite spa features a full suite of thermal areas. An on-site restaurant helmed by Ducasse alumnus Christoph Bob, whose most recent stint was at the two-starred Torre del Saracino in Naples, means the food at Monastero Santa Rosa will be an able complement to the accommodation and the stunning setting.

Knightsbridge newcomer

Bulgari Hotel

Following properties in Milan, Tokyo and Bali, Bulgari opens its long-awaited London outpost this spring: a sleek 85-room hotel designed by architects Antonio Citterio and Patricia Viel with a sizable spa and an Italianate restaurant overseen by Robbie Papin. bulgarihotels.com

Tumi Tegra-Lite

Created from a composite material used in life-saving armour, Tumi's just-debuted Tegra-Lite collection is the company's lightest yet most rugged range to date. tumi.com

After a four-year renovation, the 12-room VILLA AM RUHRUFER Golf & Spa hotel, one of Europe's smallest five-star properties, is now open on the banks of the Ruhr River in the heart of North Rhine-Westphalia.

The stately Haussmannian exterior of the W PARIS - OPÉRA belies an unabashedly mod interior with 91 rooms and suites and a Catalan restaurant courtesy of Sergi Arola, near the Galeries Lafayette in the Ninth.
